The Feather Journey

*Like a feather that goes lightly
into the unknown*

*trusting the winds of time
to carry it home*

*May you too have moments
in your glorious flight
when you abandon control*

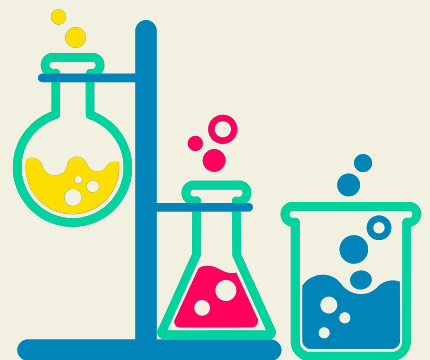

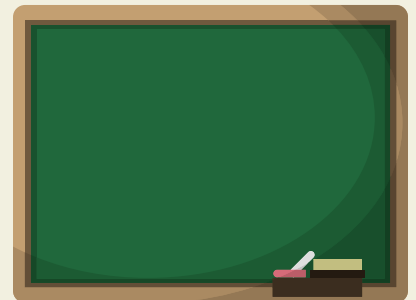

over day and night

And as you float on the currents of love and grace

*letting fears give way
to a buoyant faith*

*Trust that you will happen
on a course that is true
and land in the place
that is waiting for you.*

PROPELLING HAPPINESS THROUGH HAPPINESS CURRICULUM

HAPPINESS CURRICULUM' has been introduced in the Morning Hour to build self aware, sensitive and mindful children as Happy Children symbolizes Happy Learning.

These classes are fun and activity based with smiles, claps, stories, expressions, Reflective questions, group discussions, Role Play, Presentation and the list continues. This has improved the well being of children and are now more mindful than being mind full.

Curriculum must lay emphasis on life-long learning

Q. Schools are going to begin in offline mode now. What is your roadmap for this academic session? How are we going to address the 'loss of learning issue'?

ANS: The roadmap for the new academic session requires proper meticulous planning, prioritizing and execution on our part to ensure that no body is left behind and all learners are back in school in time. Addressing issues concerning mental well-being of students, providing guidance & counselling sessions, and psycho-social support is the need of the hour. Tailored and sustained support is needed to help students regain confidence, readjust and catch-up after the pandemic.

Q. What are the changes NEP has brought about and how do you think it will benefit students in the long run?

ANS: The New Education Policy, 2020 makes a clarion call towards a holistic education including multidisciplinary learning, outcome-based curriculum with an emphasis on skill development, entrepreneurship, experiential learning, and interdisciplinary curriculum with an emphasis on learner autonomy. It will help students shift focus away rote learning and will inspire them to go on to understand, paraphrase, analyze, create thus preparing themselves better for future. With a strong focus on equity and inclusivity it will lead to a more meaningful, holistic and liberal education for students to engage into realistically.

Q. What is the kind of value education we want our children to learn from school? How can that be ensured?

ANS: We want our students to learn, understand and be guided by the nuances concerning transformative paradigm of learning. The students should be trained to become good human beings endowed with sterling qualities of character. We should train the mindsets of students to exercise a good sense of mental hygiene and stillness of mind. It is equally important for the students to become a responsible and understanding member of the community and society at large. We should also sensitize the mindsets of our students towards various social, moral, ethical and political issues without and prejudice or bias of any kind.

PRASHANT PARASHAR,
Principal/Manager, N.K. Bagrodia Public
School, Sector-9, Rohini

Q. What role does extra-curricular play in a student's life. Should schools shift focus towards this since there was a halt to every physical activity thanks to the pandemic?

ANS: Participation in extra-curricular activities is instrumental in ensuring mental well-being, social aspects of activities, and personality. It is an integral and essential part of curriculum as it helps develop leadership prowess, communication skills, decision making skills, comradery, collaboration, participation, strength, stamina, ability to work in a team setup and develop overall persona ensuring holistic development. It leads to an improved sense of self-esteem, self-discovery, empowerment, self-expression, rebuilding of identity, self-validation, motivation, and a sense of purpose.

Q. Skilling is the buzzword these days. How do you plan to incorporate skilling in your curriculum?

ANS: Skilling is indeed the buzzword these days and developing a right mix of skill sets in the students is absolutely essential. The curriculum should lay emphasis on being life-long learning, prepare students for the real world and develop them as future leaders. It should talk about consistent upskilling and its potential to open plethora of possibilities and generate employment opportunities.

Q. Why is it important for schools to constantly innovate in teaching methodologies?

ANS: Innovation in teaching methodologies is essential to make learning adaptive, inclusive and dynamic. Effective and relevant teaching methodologies can be immensely beneficial when the educators keep experimenting and applying different pedagogical techniques and approaches. It is also essential to keep the children continuously engaged in learning and understanding.

The use of innovative teaching methodologies to assist students and to teach them the benefits of innovative thinking does more than "fill the pail". It helps to kindle the passion for learning and also provides students the necessary tools to succeed.

After 2 years of lockdown due to covid, we finally got the chance to step out of the house and go on a trip to the Queen of Hill Stations, Mussoorie, Uttarakhand. The mere concept of travelling to the hills was exhilarating. Visiting a hill station in the summers is the best getaway from the scorching heat of the city you live in. In addition to that, the pleasant weather in the lap of nature added to my bundle of joy...
Thank you mentors at N.K.Bagrodia Public School

WONDERFUL!

I got a golden chance to spend some leisure time with my friends and an amiable bond with teachers.
I am really obliged to the school for organizing this trip...

Each and every thing was perfectly organised by our organisers and supervisors. We visited many places like Bhatta falls, mall road of masoorie and had much fun doing the activities in our camp. The DJ nights were the best in our campus, all of us had much fun there. This trip was amazing!

Our summer trip was like the feel of fresh breeze after the lean patch of the pandemic years. We all were excited to have fun with our friends in the lap of nature after two long years. We sang songs all night in the bus. When we reached our camp, the scenic beauty was a thing to be valued. The DJ program was so enjoyable. Next day we went for trekking and we were like on the peak of a mountain. It was a tremendous feeling. On the final day we went to Mall Road to buy some souvenirs for our family. The feeling was indescribable. Our loving and caring teachers made our trip all the more enjoyable and comfortable. It was an exotic and memorable trip

Foraying Into The World of Poetry

The students of Class 9A have learnt to appreciate the world around them through poetry. Inspired by the journey of a brook after reading Alfred Tennyson's 'The Brook', the students presented the journey of things from natural surroundings which resembles that of a Brook.

Under me, you can rest and play.

The Universe
In the infinities stands me,
Started from a great rupture,
To bring an end to reign of chaos.
I forged the galactic bodies,
And the blinding cosmic flames of stars
And the very existence of everything,
From light of Nebula's to the deep darkness of the black stars
It's all in me. It's all in me.
From the Dawn of Time to the great catastrophic
and catalysmic demolition of mine,
In the chaos again.

Sometimes like a hungry dog,
Showing its vigor to the sailors and ships.
Sometimes like a sleepy cat,
touching the shores with it's gentle waves
It is like an old man that is as old as the earth

Hiding deep secrets in itself.
With all amusements in its deep.

The Untold Story

To the happy face I said, "Hey! Do you know me?"
Confused she look here and there, "Here on your fingers
I am, see."

Then the exorbitant stone starts its story, With pride the tiny jewel narrates its glory..

"The massive earthquake came, From the vast mountains i broke ; In chunks we got separated,
And I finally lost my folks.

I rolled and rolled to join the mountain's river, Fretting
upon my unfortunate fate;
I kept pondering about my destined future, And wanted to know it without any wait.

I lost under the the river bed, Along many a rocks I rolled.

And to a wonderful different world my destiny led;
Where Lots was there to be scrolled.

Along the banks...over huge rocks,
I stuck myself harshly many a times; But the poor me
didn't knew,
This pain was actually my good fate's chime.

The rough texture turned shiny and smooth, The constant hitting made me round;
Finally the long voyage... at the shore threw me down,
Until by the local fisherman I was found...

Soon to the jeweler i was sold
Who embedded me into the plain ring of gold Then it was you who took my hold,
And you got the chance to hear the story that was untold "
